CADA Hires Jason Mack as Executive Director

(MANKATO, MN) – The Committee Against Domestic Abuse (CADA) Board of Directors is pleased to announce that Jason Mack has been selected as Executive Director. Mack, who has been employed at CADA since June of 2015, has served in a variety of capacities; most significantly and recently, as a community liaison with the Domestic Abuse Information Network (DAIN), Southern Minnesota Offender Education Program (SMOEP) coordinator/facilitator, and Blue Print for Safety coordinator.

Originally from New Ulm, Mack is an alumnus of Minnesota State University Mankato with BS and MA degrees in social sciences. Married with one child, Mack and his wife reside in Mankato. As a family, they are committed to living in a violence-free world and they are dedicated to the vision that through advocacy, education and shelter a violence free community can become a reality.

“It is a profound honor to serve as the Executive Director of CADA,” said Mack. “It is a position I cannot undertake without paying homage to the many remarkable women who have led this organization and movement from the inception. I say this because I believe in violence free communities, which we know can only happen when people live in violence-free homes.”

About the Committee Against Domestic Abuse (CADA), Inc.

CADA provides safety and support to victims of domestic violence and sexual assault through community engagement, advocacy, shelter, supervised parenting time services, and therapeutic support. CADA coordinates services across eight counties in south central Minnesota to address domestic abuse, sexual assault and human trafficking through education about the violence manifested in societal norms and behaviors like teen dating violence, battering, rape, child abuse, sexual assault, and the trafficking of women and children. For more information about CADA’s services and mission, visit: www.cadaMN.org. All services may be accessed by calling the 24-hour Crisis Line at 1-800-477-0466.
